at the Cochran.

A defense of modern police methods and a denial of the stories of the use of the "sweat box" and the "third degree" was the feature of the address made Saturday night by Ms.]. Richard Sylvester, Superientendent of Police, before the meeting of the Missouri Society, at the Cochran.

Ms.J. Sylvester was formerly a Missourian, and he spoke of his life there and of his memories of the State. Then he digressed to his life and work at this day, and from that to the state. He demounced the stories of cruelty by the police to draw confessions and information from persons suspected of crime, and said that through the medium and said that through the medium and mid that through the medium of the International Police Association the force in all countries was heing placed on a higher and higher hasis.

The terms "sweat hox" and "third degree" were described in their real meaning by the superintendent of police, and while he admitted that same years ago there had been some instances of crusity by police in this country, he said those days had gone. The arrest, according to Ms. Sylvester, is the "first degree," is macroeration, the "second degree," and the questioning of the prisoner to the Three degree, the incarceration, the "second degree," and the questioning of the prisoner the Third degree.
